Documents in most Family Law cases are public record. Under rule 1.20(b) of the California Rules of Court, filers are responsible for not including or redacting social security numbers and financial account numbers from all documents filed with the Court. Filers also should be cautious about including other confidential or personal information in filings, such as tax returns or medical records. If it is necessary to submit such materials, filers should either redact personal information or use the process for sealed records set forth in rule 2.551 of the California Rules of Court. Documents filed prior to the online purchase effective date will not be included for viewing or purchase.

Fee: $0.50 to $1.00 per page depending on document size. A party to a case who has a fee waiver is exempt from document fees for that case.
